Ambassador for climate justice

Friday, 04.12.2020 01.30 p.m. - 02.00 p.m.

Plant-for-the-Planet is a worldwide children and youth initiative with more than 88,000 members in 74 countries. The children want together with people from all over the world 1,000 billion trees plants to bind CO₂ and thus mitigate the climate crisis. As ambassadors for climate justice, the children and young people lecture to adults, challenge them to act and fight for their future.

Levin (12) from Constance is one of these ambassadors for climate justice. With various lectures, for example at the "My Future. Who Cares" conference in Bregenz or as a jury member of the nationwide KiKa Award, Levin has been committed as an ambassador for climate justice since 2019 and motivates mankind to plant 1000 billion trees for the future of children and young people.

Jana (15) from Mettmann has been working for Plant-for-the-Planet since 2016. As an ambassador for climate justice, she has been able to give important lectures alongside personalities such as the head of Deutsche Post and has managed to arrange a personal meeting with the Prime Minister of North Rhine-Westphalia, Armin Lachet.

Together Levin and Jana motivate mankind to plant 1000 billion trees for the future of children and young people.
